

The Australian Association of Stomal Therapy Nurses (AASN) is the peak professional body for Stomal Therapy Nursing in Australia. The AASN is committed to excellence and innovation in Stomal Therapy Nursing practice by the provision of guidelines, Standards and education as well as advocating on behalf of our profession and those that require our services.

Visit our website

www.stomalthrapy.au

Australian Association of Stomal Therapy Nurses
2022

Australian
Association of Stomal
Therapy Nurses

Website Resources

International Resources

Our industry partners have very kindly made their educational resources available in a variety of languages. Links on our website include pre-operative information, living with a stoma and travel certificates.

Patient and Clinician Resources

The AASTN website has accurate, easy to understand resources for both clinicians and people with stomas.

This includes patient education brochures, clinical guidelines and educational opportunities for health professionals.

Links to useful websites help patients, families, carers and clinicians access information, including Ostomy Support Groups and Ostomy Associations.

Stomal Therapy Nurses work together with the people who have stomas, their families and carers, to achieve optimal outcomes.

Together, we've got this !

How do I find a Stomal Therapy Nurse?

Most major hospitals, community nursing services and Ostomy Associations employ Stomal Therapy Nurses.

The AASTN website has a 'Find a Stoma Nurse' map that uses a postcode or suburb to help you find your nearest Stomal Therapy Nurse.

Be sure to contact them first to check their clinic times and if they accept referrals.